Twenty-five years ago the Lambeth conference of Bishops called for "a shift to a dynamic missionary emphasis going beyond care and nurture to proclamation and service".

Christ left his disciples with a mission to fulfil. The challenge of that mission raised questions about the way they were to operate as a church. The first Christians had to work out the answers for their time and their place.

From them we have inherited a tradition of faith and mission. As we rise to the challenge set before us it, is our turn to face those important questions. Questions like "How should the church be the church for today?", "How should the church speak in our time?" and "What is the role of the church here?" So now, in our time and in our place, we need to seek answers that will help us to be effective as a church and help us to fulfil the mission that has been entrusted to us.

Around fifteen years ago the Church of England carried out a study of missionary congregations - churches making connections with the changing world around them and finding out how to live, as well as tell, the gospel.

We think of great evangelists - Moody & Finney in the 19th Century, and the likes of Billy Graham & David Watson in the 20th Century. We think of big evangelistic events and services. But it was found that 80% of those who come to faith attribute friendship with a church member as the single most important factor. Notice that - friendship with a church member.

Back twenty-five years ago the Bishops at Lambeth wrote, "In many parts of the world, Anglicans have emphasised the pastoral model of ministry at the expense of mission. We believe that the Holy Spirit is now leading us to become a movement for Mission." That led to the "Decade of Evangelism". That decade has ended, but the need for evangelism is still with us.

For example:- It's increasingly difficult to find suitable godparents for baptisms. The Church of England expects them to have been confirmed. Yet, these days, so few people have been confirmed that I frequently have to use the discretionary power the Church's law provides to dispense with that requirement. But if so few parents and godparents have been confirmed, who is there to teach the children the Christian faith and to set them an example of that faith lived out?

That's just one of the signs that tell me we're living in a missionary age in this country. And that's why we need a missionary church here in our own community. So we face the challenge and questions that I mentioned at the beginning of this letter. With that in mind, I have asked our PCC and Evangelism Group to consider the situation, to look at the options and to come up with some definite plans by Easter — then to set about putting those plans into action with determination and vigour.

Please pray, please get involved and please rise to the challenge with the gladness and eagerness of Christians who are keen to follow in the footsteps of the disciples of old and to fulfil the mission Christ left to them and to us.

Julian Hartley ~ Vicar

The PCC Secretary's Notebook

Well we are now in 2013. I must admit I am not a great fan of New Year celebrations. When the New Year came in I was tucked up under the duvet. I expect it is like that for a many people – a nostalgic time remembering happy times and with sad memories. Part of my annoyance with New Year stems from my youth when our Dad insisted on doing the old traditional way of letting in the New Year. He wasn't a well man at all and suffered with some awful chest complaints. He nevertheless insisted it was his responsibility to take out the old year via the back door and bring in the New Year through the front door. He would bring a lump of coal to symbolize that we would always have a warm home. He certainly did that and we had lovely coal fires. Mum would wrap him up in scarf and gloves knowing there was nothing she could do to stop him doing what he considered was his duty. If the weather was really bad she would try to put a hot water bottle under his jumper which he considered quite unmanly. He always started the tradition minutes before he needed to and spent longer than necessary out in the cold we would hold our breath hoping he would be okay and wouldn't catch his death of cold. Those dreadful few moments waiting for the midnight chimes so that we could let our poor frozen Dad in through the front door were agony. Mum was waiting with whisky and hot water for him. He was frozen and breathless but it was a tradition that he insisted on upholding. That is something which has always stayed with me. Those times coupled with other events over the years have made me prefer my duvet.

Having said that I always try to get up to watch the fireworks going off everywhere. I am fortunate that I have uninterrupted views across the fields and can watch some spectacular displays. I am thankful that there are people out there who make sure those traditions continue. I suspect I wouldn't be much use at all. I love fireworks Julian, I really do, it is just the midnight bit that gets to me. So good luck to those who do celebrate the occasion. I hope it is many years before they too prefer the duvet.

I wish everyone a happy, healthy and peaceful new year.

Prayer Page

I WISH THERE WAS MORE PEACE

By Margaret Howarth

Dear God,
Send us your peace,
Peace to this world,
Peace to this country,
Peace for my friends and my community,
Peace for my family and my loved ones.
And God, give me your peace,
And then help me to give it all away,
As a peacemaker to my family and my
loved ones,
As a peacemaker to my friends and
community,
As a peacemaker for this country
And a peacemaker for this world.
Amen

Last year I went to visit a lady in Lindale Road who was 92 years old and had been a pupil at our School, we had a lovely time chatting, how she had loved the school and could remember the teachers. We will tell you more about her in the next magazine but here is the prayer which was one of the first things they were taught and which was said every evening before the children went home. Just imagine this prayer being said in our school 80 plus years ago every day.

'NIGHT' PRAYER

Lord keep us safe this night
secure from all our fears,
May angels guard us while we sleep,
Till morning light appears. AMEN.

Mothers Day

When a baby is born.

A child asked God, "They tell me you are sending me to Earth tomorrow, but how am I going to live there being so small and helpless?"

"Your angel will be waiting for you and take care of you."

The child further inquired, "But tell me, here in heaven I don't have to do anything but smile and sing to be happy."

God said, "Your angel will sing for you and also will smile for you.

And you will feel your angel's love and be very happy."

Again the child asked, "And how am I going to be able to understand when people talk to me if I don't know the language?"

God said, "Your angel will tell you the most beautiful and sweet words you will ever hear, and with much patience and care your angel will teach you how to speak."

"And what am I going to do when I want to talk to you?"

"Your angel will place your hands together and teach you how to pray."

"Who will protect me?"

"Your angel will defend you even if it means risking it's life.?"

"But I will always be sad because I will not see you anymore."

God said, "Your angel will always talk to you about me and will teach you the way to come back to me, even though I will always be next to you."

At that moment there was such peace in heaven,

*but voices from Earth could be heard and the child hurriedly asked, "God, if I am to leave now, please tell me my angel's name."
You will simply call her 'Mummy'*

The Children's Society And our Christingle Service

First of all I would like to thank you all for providing the sum of over £450 for us to send to the Children's Society from our 2012 Smartie Tube Effort. In the country's present financial climate this was really brilliant and I have received a letter from the Society to say Thank You and to explain the kind of help we could have possibly made with our donation, I will put the letter on the notice board in the lounge.

We were expecting to have a member of the Safe in the City team to come to the Christingle Service talk to us about the work they do on the in Manchester in the event they had to apologise because of the amount of work they had in at that time they couldn't send anyone. We had arranged with David Kendrick that the children should take a special part, we were going to ask them to come into the lounge during the service to help finish the Christingles and then to give them out to the congregation and we had lots of toiletries to send to the Safe in the City young people and they were to take the toiletries up to present them to the representative.

But.... on the Sunday the heaters packed in so we had to have the Service in the lounge, lots of people came, it was quite packed but with a lovely atmosphere. Luckily we had finished the Christingles ourselves because we would have had to send the children outside to do them! The service was a bit jumbled but extremely enjoyable, the children did play a big part, they took up the collection plates - too heavy for one person, they helped Sue Bloors with the wonderful prayers she had written specially for the day and they read out special prayers for the Society. We hope that next year the children will be even more involved. Andrea had obtained permission to tell us about some of the work of the Manchester Team as they could not come themselves. The toiletries were displayed at the front of the lounge. David did his usual humorous, good natured, and serious talk and showed us a huge tube of Smarties which he threatened we would be giving out to everyone at Easter to fill for next year, I think there were about seven smaller tubes inside it - if only we could do that!

Everyone agreed that they had thoroughly enjoyed the Service.

Places to see, Things to do

Lindisfarne Gospels and Durham Cathedral

Durham is the most amazing cathedral, founded by monks in 995AD who were wandering around North East England with the body of St.Cuthbert, one step ahead of the Vikings and finally finding a safe place, chosen by God with the help of some cows. Rebuilt by the Normans beginning in 1093 with big, fat nave columns with breathtaking zig-zag decorations it contains the tomb and actual wooden coffin of Cuthbert, 1400 years old! I love it and consider it to be the best cathedral on the planet. From the amazing Sanctuary knocker on the door like a lions head, where fugitives could bang to be let in and receive sanctuary for 30 days and then chose exile or trial (not used much these days!) you are stunned by the sheer magnificence of the place, the door behind it dates from 1140!

The cloisters were used as 'Hogwarts' in 2 of the Harry Potter films and also contain a rather nice cafe! When we visited once mum strayed into a guided tour and she loved the fact that the guide told them that if you put your hand around the back of the Purbeck Marble columns that are as smooth as silk at the front, they are in their original rough cut state at the back where they are not seen! Since then mum has been pushing her hands around the back of marble columns in many cathedrals, just to check!?! People have worshipped in this place for over 1000 years and you can feel their love and devotion in the very stones of the place. Go see, be amazed and praise God that such wonderful places are still ringing with the reverence and glory they were built for today - and have a feel behind those columns!

Lindisfarne Gospels Durham Exhibition 2013.

The Lindisfarne Gospels will be on show in Durham University's Palace Green Library from 1 July- 30 September 2013. The Gospels were created by the community of St Cuthbert on Lindisfarne and are one of the best examples of creativity and craftsmanship from early Medieval times. The exhibition takes visitors on a journey of exploration, learning how and why this masterpiece was created, its influence on Medieval Europe and how artistic traditions from Britain and the Mediterranean mainland came together in North East England. Other things on show include artefacts wrought from precious metals and minerals including gold, amber and silver and stone sculpture alongside medieval manuscripts including the St Cuthbert Gospel and the Durham Gospels.

The centrepiece of the exhibition is the gospel book itself, written in honour of St Cuthbert and displayed alongside his treasures.

Celtic Summer Pilgrimage "A journey of Faith and an Insight into the Celtic tradition"

Monday 15th July - Monday 22nd July 2013 (£495)

An invitation to see the exhibition and spend the week next door to Durham Cathedral visiting the wonders of the north of England!

The Northern Saints associated with the north east of England continue to inspire and encourage Christians into the 21st century. The writings of the Venerable Bede, who tells of the lives of Aidan, Cuthbert, Hilda and Cedd - and all of their contemporaries - forms the backdrop to a remarkable week of journey and discovery.

Included are: 7 nights accommodation at St Chad's College, Durham, Bed & Breakfast basis, Single rooms available at no extra charge, All touring in modern air-conditioned coaches, All lectures and visits. [Half board option available - £86 (5 dinners)] Visit: Whitby, Lastingham, Durham Cathedral, Holy Island & Bamburgh, Bede's World. Pilgrimage Leader: Rob Marshall has been leading pilgrimages to the North East for over a decade and is a regular contributor to BBC Radio 4's Thought for the Day.

Favourite Hymn

The hymn we selected for this month's magazine was 'For the Beauty of the Earth'. We had decided to choose a hymn with a tune composed by John Rutter the most popular composer of hymn tunes at the present time. This is a very popular hymn and we decided that its words fitted quite nicely with the time of the year and its promises, even though they consist of snow at the moment, this week we have had bunches of daffodils in the house and the blackbirds have been singing. John Rutter has written a lovely new tune to it which we are hoping may be used at St. John's sometime in the future.

John Rutter was born in London and was educated at Highgate School and at present lives in Duxbury. He read music at Clare College, Cambridge he was in the choir there and was the Director of Music there from 1975 until 1979. In 1981 he founded his own choir which he still conducts. The Archbishop of Canterbury conferred a Lambeth Doctor of Music on him 1996 in recognition of his contribution to Church Music, along with many more accolades from other sources in the U.K. and abroad. His compositions are mostly choral.

In 2002 he composed a setting of Psalm 150 for the Queen's Jubilee which was performed at the Service in St. Paul's Cathedral and in 2011 was commissioned to write an anthem 'This is the day the Lord has made' and which was performed in Westminster Abbey for the Royal Wedding.

He has written music for many Christmas songs, anthems and carols and he said "Christmas is a happy time of memories revolving around family and gatherings. But it also revolved around my school chapel. I was at school in North London that had a chapel with fine choir. And our Christmas Carol Service was the high point of our singing year. So I actually developed a love of the whole music of Christmas, along with the message of Christmas. With music your Christmas can always be perfect. With a real-life Christmas there is always something that goes a bit wrong, you're hoping it's going to snow but it doesn't, or your turkey smells absolutely gorgeous but it doesn't. But the music of Christmas is always perfect and so I love to remember Christmas in music and song".

We were also blessed to have many occasions when we can sing Christmas music be it in church on the Common in the rain! By the number who turn out in that weather, there are many more people who enjoy Christmas music.

Whilst I was looking at the hymn 'For the Beauty of the Earth' I found that it was used in America at Thanksgiving, this held all kinds of interesting surprises and we decided that we could use it in the November Magazine.

THE FOOD PAGE

Writing this just after the New Year when many people are on a diet but understanding that it is for later in the year is always a little odd! But then there is the joy of Pancake Day to come and some fruit recipes to accompany them and my annual Rome trip with the joy of the Italian cuisine to come, hence the pasta recipe! Hope you enjoy!

Andrea Taziker

Cherry and Almond Cake

6oz self raising flour
4oz margarine
4oz glace cherries
4oz castor sugar
2oz ground almonds
2 large eggs
Pinch of salt
Milk to mix

Cream butter and sugar in a bowl. Beat in eggs one at a time. Mix together flour, salt and ground almonds and fold into the mixture, Wash cherries, to remove syrup, roll in the flour and add to the mixture, if it is too dry add milk a little at a time until the mixture drops from a spoon. Put into a greased and lined loaf-tin. Bake for 1 $\frac{1}{4}$ hours on Gas Mark 4.

This is Dorothy Mather's recipe from 'Common Favourites'. Mrs.Mather, I cannot call her Dorothy, was long time member of St.John's congregation; a valued member of the choir, Mother's Union/Women's Fellowship, PCC Secretary, Sunday School Teacher, etc. She had a sharp dry wit which enlivened many a church meeting! When Stephen Bell called her Dot and I hugged and kissed her when we came back from university Mr.Bell nearly fainted with shock! But she loved it!

2 Cheese pasta bake

8oz ribbon pasta
1oz butter
2oz Stilton cheese(or any strong cheese)
4oz Mozzarella cheese
8oz mushrooms-thinly sliced
1 clove of garlic-crushed
1 egg
4 tbsp fresh double cream
Salt and pepper

Boil the pasta for about 7 mins.
Melt the butter in a large frying pan and fry the mushrooms and garlic until just soft.
Crumble in the Stilton and cook, stirring continuously for a couple of minutes and then stir in the cream, seasoning to taste.
Drain the pasta and add pepper, stir into the mix in the frying pan and then add the egg and mix well together.
Put the mixture into a buttered ovenproof dish and grate the Mozzarella on top. Cover with foil and bake for 10mins Gas mark 4, remove foil and bake for 10 mins gas mark 7 until brown and crusty on top.

To serve with pancakes

Caramelised apples

Cut dessert apples into thin slices, sprinkle with muscavado sugar and fry in butter over a medium heat until they caramelize.

Caramelised pineapple.

Toss sliced pineapple in brown sugar and rum in a bowl. Fry pineapple in olive oil in a frying pan until golden and caramelised. Add the liquid from the bowl to the pan and bubble for c.min pour over the pineapple pieces
